

Task Force on Theology of Social Justice Advocacy Meeting
February, 2020

We heard a reflection from Jose Rodriguez.

Discussion about the Anglican / Episcopal churches as rooted in colonial practice.
What does it mean when the church doesn't look like the community around us?
How can we call our church to exercise a theology of social justice inside the church?
Examples: when an Hispanic priest is told he can't serve "over" non-Hispanics, what is that saying? Or when a community wants to invest its resources into serving the community, feeding, sheltering etc., instead of a full-time priest but rather a bi-vocational priest, is that church looked down upon or held up?

Discussion about how to use our time in St. Louis; also looking ahead, we will meet on April 3rd instead of April 10th (Good Friday).

Sarah will set up the Zoom meetings with GCO.
